

Global Reporting in Southern Africa

Beginning in August 2005, Global Reporting will have an office located in Lusaka, Zambia. Petter Bolme, journalist, and project manager at Global Reporting since 1999, will cover Southern Africa for Global Reporting.

This will allow us to deliver from the region:

- Articles and photos
- Qualified research
- Project reviews, analyses, visits
- Field studies and reports
- Support and advice local partners
- Produce information material

Although he will be working out of Africa, Petter Bolme will be supported by, and work together with, the entire staff of Global Reporting in Stockholm, and he will draw upon the professional expertise of everything from graphic design to strategic communication.

Global Reporting

Global Reporting is a media and consultancy company. We travel extensively to communicate the events that shape our world. Global Reporting works with non-governmental organizations, governments, private companies, as well as producing features for magazines and newspapers. Our speciality is communication in development cooperation.

Communication can be a vital tool to strengthen democracy and increase the respect for human rights. That is why communication has become an important component to achieve development goals and alleviate poverty.
